FBD National Hall of Fame Awards

The Irish Angus Cattle Society is honoured to nominate Joe Moran from Powerstown, Goresbridge in Co. Kilkenny as the Irish Angus Cattle Society recipient of the 2024 National Hall of Fame award.

Joe set up his Irish Angus Herd in 2002 with the now renowned Powerstown Prefix. Joe farms with his wife Mary and son Michael and has bred many champions over the years, including All Ireland Supreme Champions, with 2023 being another Irish Angus All-Ireland. Powerstown Cleopatra claimed many accolades on the show circuit. Joe continues to breed quality animals with Powerstown Viking for the top price of €5,600 at this year's March Sale in Kilkenny.

Joe has a keen eye for quality animals and is also a well-respected Judge having judged many shows and show/sales, and indeed often purchasing the top animal of the day. Over the years he has always selected the best genetics available and endeavours to breed top quality Irish Angus Cattle being a firm believer that quality is paramount.

Joe was elected to the Council of the Irish Angus Cattle Society in 2008 and elected as the Society President in 2011 and served as President for two years. Joe continues to serve on Council and give his time for the Irish Angus Cattle Society. Joe has welcomed many visiting groups to his farm and extended to them a Cead Mile Failte. He continues to work tirelessly for the Society in organising and helping out at Society events and continues to encourage new members and always promotes Irish Angus.

FBD National Hall of Fame Awards

Congratulations to all the winners at the Hall of Fame Awards

Joe & Mary Moran

Irish Angus Council in attendance
Backrow: Padraig O'Connor, John Gerard Walsh, John Farrell
Front Row: John Meany, Gerard Kilgallon, Joe Moran, Sean Kilkenny

All Ireland Irish Angus Supreme Champion 2024